HONGKONG, APRIL 26TH, 1910.

NINETEEN hundred and nine was memorable for its demonstrations in aerial navigation, proving that the attempts, protracted over centuries, to secure the conquest of the air would shortly culminate in one of the grandest achievements attained by man in his struggle to harness the forces of nature to his own use, and nineteen hundred and ten, though only a few months old, has already seen eclipsed those wonderful performances which last year fascinated the world and opened up new vistas to even the most prosaic. Yesterday our imaginations were stirred afresh by two cablegrams enlightening us with regard to two important aerial events at home. One referred to the sailing of three dirigible balloons from Cologne to Hamburg, a distance of close upon two hundred miles, which afterwards engaged in a series of evolutions in combined order. The other message referred to was an attempt being made by a British aviator to win one of the several big prizes for the long-distance flight from London to Manchester, but unfortunately to-day's telegraphic advices inform us that he had to abandon the venture through encountering a gale which damaged his aeroplane.

Giving some attention to the first, and more important, message, it helps to bring to mind the fact that Germany has proceeded on practically independent lines in experimenting in aviation and aeronautics, and, while most other countries are seeking to attain greater perfection with heavier than air machines, she is developing theories and attaining practical results with dirigible balloons, which provide daily surprises to the world. The picturesque figure of Count ZEPPELIN is still the centre of interest, and his spectacular success of last year, when his craft as long as a battleship flew 800 miles without a stop, still holds the public imagination. Since then there has been nothing so sensational as this aerial squadron of three dirigibles flying two hundred miles and then engaging in a series of manoeuvres, which must have suggested far-reaching possibilities to the onlookers.
The sight would, perhaps, more than anything the world has yet witnessed, enable spectators to visualise future methods of travelling and to conjure up the benefits and happiness which should follow in its train, and it would also induce others to forecast the new terrors added by aerial warships during periods of international hostility. But, while we cannot refuse to realise the uses to which these inventions may be applied in time of war, there seems little need to allow that prospect to become a sort of nightmare, because, even if the danger of invasion through the air were real, warfare, though still cruel, is now-days conducted according to rules, which, as in sport, decide what is fair and what is foul.

In aerial construction Germany is ahead of any other country. Her airship budget is more than that of France, the nearest competitor in expenditure, but, according to recent advices from Home, the latter country is to spend £800,000 on airships this year. General BROWN, the Minister for War, explained his attitude in these words: "I am firmly resolved," he said, "to give the army all the means of aerial locomotion available to take advantage of every forward step in the building of both aeroplanes and airships, and to secure a picked aeronautical personnel, convinced that in so doing I shall be working for the good of the army and the country." It is interesting to add that the Senate passed a vote of confidence in the Government. Though comparatively little is said about the subject in Great Britain, there are indications that the military authorities are quietly experimenting in various parts of the country. Despite the remarkable performances of the aeroplanes, it is not regarded in Britain, nor in Germany, as an efficient offensive weapon of war, and British military aeronautical policy adheres to the dirigible. Much time has been wasted in discussions on the respective merits of the rigid and non-rigid type of dirigibles, but there seems to be an agreement of opinion now that both are necessary in war time—the former for operating from a base, and the latter to accompany an army in the field, because it is easily deflated and packed up.

Turning to the more pleasant side of aerial navigation, we learn that Germany has inaugurated an aerial passenger service between certain towns, and latest news from Berlin contains the statement that four new dirigibles of the Parseval type are being constructed at Bitterfeld. One is designed for airship cruises around Munich, the second will initiate at Whitsuntide similar excursions in the vicinity of the capital, the third is designed for use by the Berlin members of the Imperial Automobile Club as an aerial yacht, and the fourth is intended to inaugurate passenger cruises at the Brussels International Exposition. America is determined not to lag behind in the aerial race, and from New York comes the announcement that a series of flights by dirigible from New York to London by way of the Pacific and across Siberia is under contemplation.
Whether this be a flight of fancy or a serious proposition remains to be seen.

The conquest of the air is now half achieved. Like other contrivances and discoveries, it has advanced step by step—one man transmitting the result of his labours, at the time apparently useless to his successors, who took it up and carried it forward another stage—but the airship was nothing, however, until it emerged from the state of theory and was taken in-hand by practical mechanics and aeronauts.
What a story of patient laborious investigation, difficulties encountered and overcome by diligence and application, failures turned to good account, and matchless courage and resource in unknown elements of danger, is woven round the development of that wonderful vessel. In the remote ages it was deemed impossible for men to fly, but the Middle Ages found some original thinkers holding different beliefs, and the idea of ALBERT of Saxony, the monk who in the seventeenth century first conceived the idea of floating through the air, was elaborated later by a Portuguese Jesuit. After a series of whimsical speculations and sober experiments, the first aerial voyage was successfully accomplished near Paris in 1783 by MONTGOLFIER, but no substantial advance was recorded in ballooning until the latter part of the last century. Progress is certain to be more rapid in the coming years, and with many ingenious minds labouring in the throes of invention, it would be unwise to attempt even the most general prophecy of what the future holds for the civilised people of the earth.

Forged five-dollar banknotes are now largely circulated in Indo-China. A Saigon newspaper says that they are very good imitations of the genuine article. The counterfeiters, however, show differences in weak colouring and in the inferior quality of the paper.

Th case in which a Chinese was charged day, when the accused was committed for trial at the Criminal Sessions.

Two natives were committed for trial by Mr.
J. R. Wood at the Magistracy yesterday on a charge of robbery. The defendants are alleged to have opened a godown at No. 20, Wing Wo cases of fancy goods valued at $1,160.

Ninety-six boxes of cigars and 200 empty boxes bearing a false trademark of the Oriental Penang municipal commissioners have decided to further extend the electric tramways as follows: From Penang Road terminus, along Chulia Street, to Penang Street, at a cost of $15,000. It is estimated that maintenance expenses will be 19 cents per car per mile per passenger, and the revenue 25 to 30 cents in the same ratio.

The action of the Governor-General in sending away from the Philippine Islands, at the request of the Imperial Chinese Consul-General, on or about the 19th day of August, 1909, the twelve persons of the Chinese race, and subjects of the Emperor of China, has been approved, and in all respects declared legal, and not subject to question or review by the Philippine Assembly.

The death of Mr. John Youngs Gould, which occurred at Shanghai, on April 18th, was invested with particularly sad circumstances.
He was to have sailed on the 22nd inst by the Kilano for home, but the grim reaper intervened, and his many friends in the Settlement are left to mourn one who was generally beloved. A man of the strictest integrity, and of a cheerful, sociable disposition, his loss will be sorely felt, especially among the Masonic fraternity, in which he held the office of Tyler in several lodges.

SUPREME COURT.

Monday, April 25th.

IN SUMMARY JURISDICTION.

ESTON HUN HONGOR, MA. H. H. J.
GOMPERTZ (PLAINTIFF) vs. JUDGE.

CLAIM FOR MONEY LENT.
Bagen Singh, a watchman from Yamati, brought action against Teong Kwai Sang and Lo Pak Tung to recover $100 due for money lent, and $24 interest.

Mr. J. H. Gardiner, who appeared for the plaintiff, said Mr. Harris was representing the defendants, but as he was not present he did not know whether he was any longer instructed.

His Lordship said it was usual for a solicitor to write in when he had no further instructions.
Mr. Gardiner—I understood he was coming in this morning to consent to judgment.

Plaintiff was called and gave evidence as to lending the money claimed at four per cent. per month. Two months' interest had been paid, and six months' was still due.

His Lordship entered judgment for plaintiff for the amount claimed and interest.

FOREIGN ATTACHMENT.

Douglas Graham sued the Ying Cheung Loong to recover from the defendants the sum of $437.11 acceptors of a bill of exchange for $33,144 and interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, dated 6th January, drawn by Hills, Monke & Co., payable sixty days after sight to the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, and endorsed by the plaintiff. The bill was duly presented to the defendants for acceptance on February 3rd, and was accepted by them on that date. It was presented for payment on April 7th and dishonoured.

Mr. W. E. L. Shenton (of Messrs. Deacon, Looker & Deacon), who appeared for the plaintiff, stated that the writ in this matter was issued on April 8th, and a writ of foreign attachment was applied for, the firm presumably having closed; anyway, the partners were not to be found in their place of business. The writ was granted and the furnitures seized. It was now in the hands of the bailiff. Mr. Shenton put in as exhibits advertisements which appeared in the Government Gazette and the Hongkong Daily Press concerning the writ of foreign attachment.
Lung Tin Kwai, comptroller to the plaintiff, gave evidence as to the amount due, and stated that the bill of exchange had been presented for payment and was dishonoured. Defendants were also indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $47.05, for goods sold and delivered.

Mr. F. Howell, chief bailiff, stated that the writ of foreign attachment was left in his hands on April 8th. He was unable to find any representative of the defendant firm on the premises, so a Registrar's order for seizure was made, and witness took possession of the property.

His Lordship entered judgment for plaintiff, with leave to issue execution against the property.

MR. ROOSEVELT IN PARIS.

LONDON, April 24th.

Mr. Roosevelt, at the Sorbonne, delivered an impressive address on the subject of "Citizenship in a Republic." He urged the necessity of keeping the standard of average citizenship high, and while paying all homage to intellect he appealed to the brilliant assemblage present not to forget the commonplace qualities and virtues, the will and the power to work and fight, and to have plenty of children, as the greatest of all curses was the curse of sterility.

KOWLOON-CANTON RAILWAY.

OFFICIAL INSPECTION BY H. E.
THE GOVERNOR.

On Saturday last H.E. the Governor made a complete inspection of the British section of the Kowloon-Canton Railway accompanied by the Hon. Sir Henry May, the Colonial Secretary, the Hon. Mr. Chatham, Director of Public Works, Mr. Clement, Asst. Colonial Secretary; Capt. Simson, Private Secretary; Mr. Jones, Asst. D.E.W.; Captain Taylor, A.D.C.; and His Honour the Acting Chief Justice. The party were met at Blackhead Wharf by Mr. Lindsey, C.R.E., and Mr. Baker, District Engineer, and proceeded by train by the overland (construction) route as far as Bridge No.
4. Crossing over on foot H.E. again took train on the other side, passing Bridge No. 8 on a temporary track laid to one side of the bridge.
With the one exception of bridge No. 4 the entire journey from Kowloon Point to the frontier was made by rail. It is expected that these two bridges will be completed within a month or two. From a point a short way beyond bridge No. 8 to the mouth of the tunnel the party were conveyed on one of the two new engines which have just been erected by Mr. Evans. About a mile from the north end of the tunnel Mr. Logan, District Engineer of the section, joined the party and the distance from here to Tai-po was overseen on trolleys. At the Tai-po station H.E. and party with other guests were entertained at lunch by Mr. Lindsey, after which the whole party proceeded by train to the frontier and back. The return journey was made by trolley from Tai-po to Lok-lo-ha, and thence by trolley and rail to Tai-kok-tai, where the Governor's launch was waiting at 6.30 p.m. H.E. expressed great satisfaction with the progress made since his last visit and congratulated the C.R.E. and his staff on the excellent work done.

HANDMANN OPERA COMPANY.

Though the weather was not conducive to indoor entertainments the Handmann Opera Company have established such an excellent reputation and "The Arcadians" has created such a favourable impression that a good house welcomed the artistes last night on their return to the colony. Their production of the charming play was all that could be desired, and the pleasing music, exquisite scenery and laughable episodes, with Harry Cole in good form, contributed to one of the most entertaining nights ever passed by a Hongkong audience.

To-night "Our Miss Gibbs" will be staged, and the short season will conclude with "The Dollar Princess," Thursday night's performance having to be abandoned as the company proceed to Shanghai that day.

SHIPPING NOTES.

The s.s. Minnesota will inaugurate the Great Northern Steamship Company's departure in calling at Manila on her way to Japan and America. She sails from here on May 3rd.

The Java-China-Japan Steamship Company has ordered a new steamer to be built at the Shipbuilding Company Fyfeord at Rotterdam.
The liner must be ready in May, 1911, and will have a length of 420 ft., a breadth of 54 ft., and a depth of 30 ft., with a speed of 11½ knots. The steamer must measure 8,030 register tons, and the engines will have a capacity of 2,000 h.p.

The Secretary of the Imperial Merchant Service Guild has just received a communication from Captain J. Peters, of the s.s.
Hatunet, who rendered such signal services in rescuing—under circumstances of a very perilous nature—the greater portion of those on board the wrecked steamer Lima. It is understood that the Guild are putting forward the circumstances of Mr. Nicholson's heroism in the proper quarter. The communication states that from the time Mr. Nicholson first came alongside the Hatunet until the time he met his death, never for a moment did his courage waver. He was every inch a hero, and worked from beginning to end with an amount of real which had there been any laggards, would have roused in them every atom of manhood and energy they possessed. He is now beyond the reach of earthly reward, but never was the highest award for valour more nobly won than was won by him.

From details of the wreck of the Pericles it appears that the vessel struck a rock with her bows, three miles south of Cape Leswein, in fine weather. She was supposed to be lying in nineteen fathoms of water. A number of the passengers were entirely without money, and all their luggage and the mails were lost. After the ship struck the women behaved splendidly, and by their coolness and courage averted all chances of a panic. The captain stated that the Pericles was on a course he had travelled many times before, and he believes that the disaster was due to the vessel striking an uncharted rock seven and a half miles from the shore.

The suggestion that an age limit should be imposed on passenger shipmarines out of the loss of the Isle of Man boat, the Ellan Vannin, which was half a century old. An inquiry was held by the Board of Trade into the causes of the disaster, and the Court could find no evidence that the vessel was in any way defective as regards either hull or equipment. On the contrary, there was testimony that substantial sums had been spent in keeping the Ellan Vannin in good and seaworthy condition. The catastrophe, it was considered, was attributable to weather of quite exceptional violence, such as might have had equally serious consequences in the case of a more modern steamer. Thus the demand for an age limit does not appear to be carried very far by the loss of the Ellan Vannin. If, as is stated, the question is to be discussed independently of a particular instance, then the argument seems to start at a considerable disadvantage.
From a shipbuilder's point of view an age limit for the passenger vessels which he builds would doubtless be desirable, since it would probably mean a little more work for him. But the owner's interests have also to be considered.
Why, he may well ask, should he be compelled to scrap his vessel at a particular age, irrespective of her condition, when railway companies, for example, are left with a free hand in regard to their rolling stock? By what standard, too, is an age limit fairly applicable to all types of passenger steamers to be arrived at?
It appears to be forgotten that in the greater economy of new vessels the shipowner finds a strong inducement to renew his fleet from time to time, while the ever-increasing demands of the travelling public operate in the same direction. All the same, as experienced travellers know, the older boats have often the most weatherly qualities.

The Olympic, the first of the Leviathan liners which Messrs. Harland & Wolff are building for the White Star Line, is to be launched in October. At present, however, the arrangements for depozing the approaches to Southampton, the port from which these big vessels are to run, remain incomplete. The White Star Line holds that an existing depth of 35ft. at low water is insufficient to admit of the free passage of the big liners at all times. It asks for 35ft. The Southampton Harbour Board express itself willing to do the necessary dredging if the White Star Line will agree to pay £2,000 per annum for a period of years, and this in addition to ordinary dues. To this proposition the White Star is understood to demur. Thus a question of considerable importance is raised, namely, whether a steamship line which proposes to confer, not merely additional prestige, but substantial commercial benefits upon a port, should be called upon to contribute specially towards the regulate improvement of that port. Possibly there is a feeling that, because Southampton is inevitably marked out as the port for the Olympic and the Titanic, the harbour authority occupies a strong position, and can afford to be just a little dictatorial. On the other hand, if bargaining of the type suggested were successful, a rather disquieting precedent would be set. It is understood that between two and three millions of capital are involved in the construction of the two White Star liners.
This suggests an expenditure sufficiently costly in itself, apart from the prospect of an annual contribution towards the cost of dredging. Moreover, the proposal involves the acceptance of the vicious principle that ships of deep draught should be penalised because they require more water than others. Action which discourages builders from constructing big, economical ships represents the worst possible policy on the part of any port that claims to be progressive.

CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA AND CHINA.

us. I should like to say that, in my humble opinion, it is of vital importance to India banking, for if the Government failed in that task confidence would be destroyed, our profits would be seriously jeopardized, and the tranquillity which pervades the present annual meeting would be rudely disturbed. You have raised the question of the size of the reserve which is to be held to support this currency policy. To my mind less importance attaches to the size of the reserve than to the policy with which it is backed. I would sooner see a reserve of £20,000,000, with a resolute policy, than a reserve of £40,000,000, with such a weak and irresolute policy as we have had in the past. There is just one criticism I would like to pass with regard to the Budget, for although we do not really meet here for criticism of the Indian Budget, you, Sir, have introduced the subject. Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson has stated that when the reserves in this country and in the paper currency department arrive at the sum of £25,000,000 he will resume the practice of devoting half the profits on coinage to the construction of railways. I am surprised that after the warning the Government of India have had in the last two years they should be eager to resume any such policy or tamper with their gold reserve. Sir Guy Fleetwood Wilson has set before him an ideal in this matter. He says he wishes to have the reserve in a position to resist him to resist the effects of one but of two bad seasons. I wonder, therefore, why he should at the same time retard the attainment of his ideal. I have yet to learn that a railway under construction, or even a complete railway, is a proper asset for a currency system. Just one other word. The Government has come forward with a well-developed and resolute policy. I must express my surprise that they have not gone a step further with it and thrown open their mind to the free coinage of gold. That was recommended by Sir Henry Fowler's Currency Committee of 1889 and it was actually contemplated by the Government in September of that year, when the sovereign was made legal tender in India. Legal and technical difficulties arose, and the step was postponed. They have had ample time in the last ten years to deal with those difficulties and remove them, and it seems to me that India should still be placed in a position to issue gold freely.

The Chairman then put the motion to the meeting, and it was carried unanimously. Continuing, he proposed that a dividend at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum, free of income tax, for the half-year ended 31st December last, be now declared, payable on and after the 6th proximo.

Mr. Lewis A. Wallace seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

Resolutions were afterwards passed electing Mr. William Henry Neville Gieschen a director and re-electing the Rt. Hon. Lord George Hamilton, G.C.S.I., to his seat at the board.

The Chairman then moved:—That the income-tax on the fees of the directors and auditors be paid by the bank, and that this authority be retrospective.

Mr. Ross seconded the resolution, and it was carried unanimously.

The Chairman stated that the next resolutions were for increasing the fees of the auditors from £300 to £500 per annum, and for re-electing both the present auditors. As regards the increase in the auditors' fees, they found that, compared with other kindred institutions, the fees paid by the bank were considerably below the ordinary standard, that Mr. Browne had to employ a good part of his staff from two to three months in auditing the accounts, and that really the fee hitherto paid by the bank had been insufficient to meet this. He added that, of course, Mr. Browne's firm was a firm of chartered accountants.

On the motion of Mr. Ross, seconded by Mr. Smart, a resolution was passed increasing the fees of the auditors from £300 to £500 per annum, to be divided as they might agree, and Mr. G. King afterwards proposed, and Mr. James Halliday seconded, the re-election—which was unanimously approved—of Mr. Magnus Mowat and Mr. William Adolphus Browne, F.C.A., as auditors of the bank.

Mr. Mowat replied on behalf of Mr. Browne and himself, and said that they greatly appreciated the action of the shareholders.

Mr. O. E. Melchers then proposed a vote of thanks to directors, the managers, and the staff, remarking that they had all discharged their duties very ably. Although, perhaps, the profits of the bank had not been quite so large as in former years, yet the shareholders had every reason to be quite satisfied.

Mr. Halliday seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

The Chairman stated that this resolution has been passed, because I regard it as a vote of thanks to the staff, who this time have not been able to participate in a bonus. No staff has worked better than ours. I am here every day for most part of the day, and am thoroughly in touch with the staff at home and with a good many of the staff abroad, and I may say that they thoroughly deserve your thanks. Next year I hope they will be able to thank you for a bonus. (Cheers.)

The meeting then separated.

AN ENGINEERING ROMANCE.

One of the world's most interesting engineering romances—if one may with propriety ally these last two words—is brought into prominence by the brief announcement that the French railway from Tonkin to Yunnan is finished, and that, by the end of this month, the whole line from Hanoi to the ancient Chinese city of Yunnan-fu, over 500 miles beyond the mountain ranges, will be open to traffic.

This artery of steel from the coast to the dark interior has cost in some districts over £7,000 per mile to build. Probably £5,000 per mile would not be a bad estimate of the total amount appropriated for the construction of this particular line, from the loan of 200,000,000 francs asked for in 1893 by the Colonial Council in connection with the programme for a network of railways in and about French Indo-China. The line is a magnificent tribute to the French engineers, who have battled with all known difficulties and a few more besides.

It pushes out through the paddy-fields about Hanoi, flings itself cheerfully into the difficult country beyond Yunnan, demands the assistance of no fewer than 175 bridges to defy the challenge of the broken land to Laos—a bridge almost every mile. Thence it shoots north, now following the river's course, now across unhealthy marsh, now dodging a 6,000 ft. mountain, and, until it is 5,000 ft. above sea level, it goes down more bridges, round more mountains, down more gorges, to Yunnan-fu. John Chinaman up in the Yunnan heights will now be able to laugh at his pack-mules and at the slow-moving junks which go down to the sea. His exports and imports will increase by reason of the new facilities; and, should he himself desire one day to rub shoulders with civilisation down on the coast, he will be able to travel with ease and comfort from end to end of the foreign domain for less than £1. On some parts of the Indo-China railways he can travel nearly 150 miles for the equivalent of two shillings.

The completion of this railway realises in part the ambition of a celebrated Frenchman, who, once a printer, 'tis said, in Paris, dropped into the political flower-bed, and blossomed forth in due course as Governor-General of Indo-China. When Paul Doumer, for he it was, went East in 1897, he felt it his mission to put France, politically and commercially, on as good a footing as any of her rivals, notably Great Britain. It did not take him long to see that the best missionaries in his cause would be the railways. A line to penetrate China up to Yunnan, with the possibility of an extension to Szechuan, would probably hit hard the West River traffic to Hongkong. The only other market contending for commercial honours in South-West China was Haikow, but fears of enterprise from this Lord Curzon, then Viceroy of India, to any scheme involving the spending of money on railways from Burma to Yunnan became known. Since then the balance of world-power has changed; we are not so jealous as formerly of French enterprise, and even if we were to lose somewhat when the new railway reaps its fruits, we shall not hesitate to congratulate the French engineers on their magnificent work, nor fail to wish our neighbours joy and profit of their enterprise. There are some who doubt whether the commercial possibilities of Yunnan justify the large expenditure on railway construction. Authorities differ on this question; but the weight of opinion seems to be in favour of the ultimate financial success of the enterprise. There are many markets in Yunnan crying out to be quickly fed with European goods; while the mineral and other resources of the province will be developed by the arrival of the railroad.

NO BUDGET.

LOSS OF £26,248,155.

After numerous revisions of his Budget—so numerous and protracted to such a late date in the financial year that for the first time the weekly revenue returns have all through appeared without the usual estimates—Mr. Lloyd George, towards the end of October, finally put the revenue for 1909-1910 at £162,940,000, and the expenditure chargeable against revenue at £189,188,155. Actually the revenue collected in the past year much of which was his outcome of voluntary payments, owing to the good sense and good feeling of the business community, amounted to £131,696,456, while expenditure, after appropriating the whole of the sinking fund, was reduced to £157,944,611. The results are consequently:

	1909-10.	Estimated.	Actual.
Expenditure	£189,188,155	£189,188,155	£157,944,611
Revenue	£162,940,000	£162,940,000	£131,696,456
Deficit	£26,248,155	£26,248,155	£26,248,155

Taking the expenditure first, the reduction of four and a half millions has been effected mainly by taking account of £2,750,000 from the sinking fund, which had previously been raised to the extent of £5,500,000, and by handing over £300,000 less than had been promised to local authorities.

Owing to the complicated manner in which the estimates of revenue were finally made up, with concessions in some cases and increases in others, and the absence of any full and lucid statement, it is difficult to be sure of the complete accuracy of the following figures. But so far as they can be worked out, the comparison of the actual receipts from the principal sources with the Chancellor's estimates is as under:

	Estimate.	Actual.
Customs	£1,540,000	£1,148,000
Excise	2,460,000	2,618,000
Estate Duties	4,150,000	3,396,000
Stamps	900,000	309,000
House duty	530,000	1,929,000
Income tax	3,200,000	20,635,000
Postal service	200,000	459,000
Telegraph and telephone	160,000	280,000
Crown Lands, Suez Canal, and miscel.	—	—
Income	640,000	300,000

It will be seen at a glance that all but about half a million of the deficit is due to the non-collection of income-tax and house duty. Customs duties have come in very well, and are only £400,000 short of the estimate. Excise, however, in spite of the subsequent reduction in the estimate, and the non-payment of the higher license duties, shows how utterly at fault the Chancellor was in his calculations. The Post Office and the telephone service, on the other hand, have exceeded anticipations, and the falling-off in miscellaneous receipts is smaller than expected. The revenue returns, in short, carry the Government's condemnation on their face.

Mr. Lloyd George on April 29 stated that he had to find some 16 millions of fresh revenue. His Budget was regarded by finance as a menace to the country's credit, and one of the most influential meetings ever held in the City of London passed a unanimous protest against it. Yet when the crisis came and the Budget was referred back to the people, it was the business community who continued voluntarily to pay their taxes. Millions of money from income-tax payments have been and are still lying in the banks waiting to be handed over to the Treasury. But for the sake of a discreditable party maneuver the Government prefer to borrow their own money and charge the country with interest on it. The Prime Minister and the Chancellor know that all income-tax resolutions could have been passed so soon as Parliament reassembled for the offer was solemnly made to them by the Leader of the Opposition. But, in order to produce some semblance of the financial class which they cheerfully predicted four or five months ago, they refused to consider the public welfare, and are probably shocked that the deficit for which they cannot, and will not, escape responsibility, is only twenty-six and a quarter millions.

INCREASE IN EXPENDITURE.

The present financial situation is absolutely without precedent. The financial year has passed without a Budget, and, presumably, the collection of any and every tax has been quite illegal. The promises of economy and retrenchment with which the Government came into office have been thrown to the winds. Instead, the country's expenditure has gone up by leaps and bounds, and whereas the last Unionist Budget reached £140,500,000, the expenditure forecasted for 1910-11 is no less than £171,029,000, which amount would be still larger if it were not understood that the new sinking fund is again to be reduced to the extent of £5,000,000. The Budget of 1909-10 was ten millions bigger than its predecessor, and now we are faced with another ten millions made up as follows, according to the estimates for the supply services:

	1910-11.	Compared with 1909-19.
Army	£27,760,000	+ £325,000
Navy	40,603,700	+ 6,950,000
Civil Services	42,685,446	+ 2,147,874
Revenue	23,382,656	+ 1,031,926
Total Supply	£134,431,802	+ £11,454,806

It is not only the Army and Navy that are running up the expenses. We have already got up to £9,220,000 for old-age pensions, and the increased cost of the Board of Trade and other departments, where fresh posts are being created every day, is becoming a very serious factor. The finances of the country under any circumstances need the most skilled and careful guidance, having regard to the huge increase in the national expenditure, yet our credit is being played with and jeopardised in the most reckless manner, as it is, as Mr. George protests, Great Britain were so rich that that nothing matters. The refusal of the Government to legislate the collection of taxes, which everyone is now aware could have been done in a very short space of time, and the wholly unnecessary charge to which they are putting the country for interest on borrowed money, will go down to history as a national crime. So far, while pretending that the Budget cannot be passed except as a whole, for which there appears no sort of legal authority, they have managed to create a deficit of £26,248,155, after amassing without authorisation the whole of the sinking fund.—Daily Telegraph.
